*Basically no phrases to clarify. It really is written in straightforward phrases rather than hard to understand. You will not sense monotony at any moment of your own time (that's what catalogues are for concerning if you ask me).

When Vincent, his wife Kathy, and their psychic, gifted but very disturbed son Marcus moved to the countryside and into Vincent's old uncle Solomon's run-down large house, they expected peace, quiet and a joyous time; starting a new life, trying for another baby, and were very much looking forward to the next phase in their dull lives - especially as this very generous uncle had left them a lot of money in his Will after his mysterious disappearance, assumed dead, after police called off a search after sufficient time had passed. What the family hadn't expected were the horrendous experiences that followed, due to the house standing above an old cemetery and, beneath that, Hell itself. Uncle Solomon hadn't told them that part, on purpose. He also hadn't informed them that he'd been a master of occult practices and had frequently delved in many other risky things too over the years, including telepathically and psychically influencing Marcus to carry out his work for him, after his death. The boy's resistance only made Solomon even more determined to see his plans come to fruition. They were in for a horrendous shock when, one by one, many secrets and mysteries began to become unearthed and known, once and for all, placing the family in grave danger. Are the boy's powers strong enough to prevent disaster? Sometimes, there are a lot worse things...
